

Jon Krueger gets after a brisk afternoon surf sesh in the ponderosa hole.

Dave Farkas takes a ride on the white pillow.

Surf's Up

by Stephen Eginoire

As the snow melts and the rivers swell with icy water, this season's spring run-off is being met with even more enthusiasm than ever as the new and improved whitewater park comes alive. The consensus? The surfing is pretty damned good. And, of course, there's still much potential to watch raft carnage from high and dry from the expanded peanut gallery. Here's a look at some local fun-

A lone kayaker gives a salute to radness while effortlessly glassing against the current.

