Ghost Ranch

by Jennaye Derge

Just three hours southeast of Durango, solace seekers will find a place known as Ghost Ranch, an expansive acreage with historical Spanish roots. These lands were made famous by artist Georgia O'Keefe, who once called it home and used the setting in many of her most famous paintings.

A quiet retreat for many, the ranch offers educational opportunities, as well as a chance to get outside, hike or ride the trails, swim the waters, or just rest under the open skies of the desert.

Dormant brush in the winter makes for a stark silhouette.
