

BREW Pub & Kitchen presented chicken and waffles smothered in a maple-strawberry-blackberry jam.

Lili Ruecker waits patiently during her transformation into a skeleton.

Good to the last drop

by Jennaye Derge

Do Durangoans really need another excuse to stuff their faces with delicious food and beverage? Yes. Yes we do.

Thanks to the Durango chapter of the Colorado Restaurant Association, it was even easier to find the libations we love last Sunday at the annual kick off to the summer party season, Taste of Durango. More than 45 local purveyors of cuisine and cocktailery lined up along Main Avenue, from 7th to 11th streets, offering everything from grilled steak to chicken and waffles to cake. Proceeds from the afternoon of feasting and imbibing went to Manna Soup Kitchen, assuring those braving the elements that their effort was going to a good cause.

Rain and hail didn't stop the party so much as temporarily relocate it.

The Yellow Carrot served up hearty comfort food and decadent desserts.

When it comes to jumping over children with a unicycle, it's best to leave it to the professionals from UniProShow.

The guys from Gazpacho keep the tortillas coming.