

Hot Wheels

by Jennaye Derge

After the buzz of Saturday's main road ride events, cyclists and spectators were left Sunday with a bicycle hangover that hurt oh so good. And what better way to cure it than with a little hair of the dog, or cog if you will. Sunday's Iron Horse Bicycle Classic included 13 more fun and adrenaline-filled hours of mountain bike races, criteriums, costumery and two-wheeled feats of strength and skill. It was enough fun, in fact, to maybe leave someone on Monday with a real hangover.

The infamous five-seated "Full House" takes laps downtown during the Cruiser Crit on Sunday afternoon.

The Cruiser Crit encourages riders of all ages, abilities and humor levels to dress up for a few laps around downtown.

Bicycle watching: fun for any age.

A trials rider wows the crowd at Steamworks with his mad skills.