

Storming the streets

by Jennaye Derge

Getting married, the birth of a child, graduating from school – all landmark life events. But for some, they only pale in comparison to next week's long-awaited release of the Star Wars movie (a septquel?) In order to, ahem, "awaken" otherwise sleepy Durangoans to this momentous occasion, a local member of the dark side took to the streets earlier this week in full regalia. While he got his fair share of stares, he also garnered quite a few high fives and even managed to get in a little holiday shopping. But mostly, he reminded Durangoans that The Force, whether hanging out at the Ranch or perusing the shelves at Maria's, is always with us.

Every tour of Durango should begin with a Cure, extra green chile.

A bus ride on the wild side.

Kicking butt at foosball at El Rancho on Monday afternoon.

Some light reading at Maria's Bookshop.
